

Abstract

A fingerprint identification device to identify fingerprints is equipped with a fingerprint reader unit to input a fingerprint to be detected and a database unit to record a 5 fingerprint database which is provided in advance. A fingerprint comparing unit identifies the input fingerprint via the fingerprint reader unit by comparing with the fingerprint database recorded in the database unit and a user recording unit records the input fingerprint input by the fingerprint reader unit.